

HOPKINSVILLE KENTUCKIAN

WEATHER for Kentucky, Thursday Probably Fair

HOPKINSVILLE KENTUCKY, THURSDAY, JULY 12, 1917.

VOL. 39 No 83

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The Russian gal soldiers are on their way to Galicia.

The leader of the Chinese rebellion is about to get Iisun.

Secretary Lane tried his hand on the coal trust and failed. Let Secretary Baker see what he can do.

Postmaster General Burleson broke up a Senate caucus the other day by butting in and making suggestions.

The loss of taxes on whisky in bond will be partially made up by the millions paid on withdrawals at once.

The "Big Four" now at the front are Haig, Petain, Brusiloff and Pershing.

The deaths from air raids on England now number 650 in two and a half years, 223 since May 24.

More than 100 saloons within two miles of the Louisville military cantonment will have to close.

There are 42 candidates for Democratic nominations in Hopkins county, 17 of them for the office of Jailer.

The Kaiser has ousted Zimmerman and several other cabinet ministers who suggested peace without annexations or indemnities.

The Mayo brothers of Rochester, Minn., will leave soon to work in French hospitals, after making a donation of $1,600,000 to the University of Minnesota.

Joe Slaughter and Miss Sophia Denney were married at Morganfield, but the groom is not our Joe. He is at Indianapolis getting ready to give the French girls a chance at him.

There are conflicting reports of the damage done by bombing Essen. An Amsterdam report says 100 people were killed and a loss of millions caused. The Germans say only two bomb holes were found.

Col. Roosevelt's three sons are headed for the front. Teddy, Jr., and Archie are with Pershing in France and Kermit has been assigned to the British army in Asia Minor as a staff officer.

In the trench fighting this week, a German held up both hands, sealing grenades under his thumbs, and threw them among the French who were rounding up prisoners. No recognized rules of civilized warfare were observed by the Germans in this.

Following a conference between Bethmann-Hollweg, the German Chancellor, and Emperor William it was said that the Emperor endorsed the stand taken by the Chancellor in opposition to the demand for peace but annexation or indemnities.

During the first six months of 1917, 216 state licenses for automobiles and 216 for motorcycles were issued to Commissioner Byars. He turned the State road fund $239,491, more than during the entire year.

Mildred L. Mount, postmistress of Oleott, N. Y., denied her husband's claim for exemption on the ground that she was dependent on his wife. "I am perfectly capable of caring for my two children and myself," she wrote, and to clinch the case added, "I am in no way dependent upon him."

The Liverpool Post is speculating on the probability of the American girls marrying English girls when America goes to war to whip the Kaiser. It is astralians nearly all fall in England but the Canadians. Speaking for the Hopkins boys, like Tom Skinner, Robert Ostar Wright, Henry Stites, George Armstrong and Joe Slaughter, doubt if they would care to stop in England if the French girls keep on belling and kissing the American girls as they march by them in

TO-MORROW'S FLAG RAISING

At Sixty School Houses Old Glory Will Be Unfurled.

MANY SPEAKERS NEEDED

Schedule of Community Gatherings at Many School Houses Announced.

Arrangements are now being completed for flag raising day in the schools north of town that are in session and present indications point to a big school rally all over North Christian Friday of this week.

Flags have been sent to each district north of town and the trustees are busy getting poles ready for the flag raising. In the meantime the teachers are working up interest in the district and are preparing to have a short program appropriate to a flag raising. It is the plan as stated before to send a special speaker to each sub-district and the following orators have offered their services:

Chas. M. Meacham, T. C. Underwood, Jas. A. McKenzie, Ira D. Smith, Frank Rives, Herman Southall, Alvan Clark, Claude Clark, Judge Knight, J. B. Allensworth, Chas. O. Prowse, Lowe G. Johnson, Jas. LATEST MODEL OF FRENCH WAR TANK

This is the St. Chamond tank, the latest model devised by the French. It is armed with long-range guns, has revolving turrets and is very heavily armored.

COLORED KY. ODD FELLOWS

Are Holding a Meeting of the Grand Lodge in the City.

Since Monday evening Hopkinsville has been the grand camping ground for the colored Odd Fellows of Kentucky. The lodge members arrived Monday on a special train and brought a Louisville band with them.

The business sessions have been held at the court house. Several hundred of the uniformed organization are encamped at the Pennyroyal Fair grounds.

Tuesday afternoon the different lodges represented paraded through the city led by their band. The column was arranged in military order and executed many military maneuvers on the streets, to the great delight of a vast crowd of colored admirers.

Tuesday night there was a meeting at the court house. Addresses of welcome and the responses were made, the band played and all colored Hopkinsville had a good time.

Last night at the Tabernacle the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the establishment of the Colored Odd Fellows in Kentucky was held. Preston Taylor, of Nashville, one of the most prominent of the colored orators of the South, delivered the principal address.

Tomorrow will be the big day. There will be parades on the streets and many different kinds of competitive drills at the fair grounds.

J. L. Gordon, of Bowling Green, is Grand Master of the lodges. G. W. Saffell, of Shelbyville, is Grand Secretary, and Thos. L. Brooks, of Frankfort, is Grand Treasurer.

ELKS' STATE REUNION

Will Be Held At Hopkinsville Middle of August This Year.

The tenth annual reunion of the Kentucky Elks will be held here on August 14, 15, and 16, and the indications are that there will be an unusually large attendance this year. An interesting program is being mapped out to be announced later.

LIGHTNING STRIKES BARN.

J. J. Robertson, of this county, has been advised that the barn of his brother, John Robertson, near Morganfield, was struck by lightning and burned with a loss of about $2,000, one day last week.

Ins and Outs.

In the sensational divorce suit of W. L. Poindexter, a wealthy farmer of the Big Pond section, of Todd county, against Mrs. Willie Poindexter, an agreed order was entered, allowing Mrs. Poindexter $360 alimony until January 1, 1918.

The $10,000 breach of promise suit of Miss Hazel Melton against Representative Sam B. Coleman, of Elkhorn, was set for trial on the fourth day of the next December term.

KENTUCKIAN

HALICZ IN RUSSIAN HANDS

Believed Demoralized Austrians Can't Make Stand on Luvka Vantage.

FRENCH STAND ATTACKS

Peace Talk in Germany Causes Several Changes in Kiaser's Cabinet.

Russia's armies have captured Halicz and have broken the Austro-German line in the Halicz-Stanislau sector, one of the most important on the eastern front. The Russian advance continues.

The Austro-German forces already have withdrawn beyond the Lomnica river, about ten miles west of Jezopol, which was occupied Sunday by General Korniloff. The Russians have taken four more villages and increased their capture of prisoners more than one thousand. Seven more field guns and other war material also fell into their hands.

West of Stanislau, toward Kalusz and Dolina, the Russians penetrated the Teutonic lines to a depth of nearly seven miles and between Stanislau and Halicz they widened their wedge. In their retirement, evidently made hastily from the large amount of guns and military stores captured by the Russians, the Austro-Germans failed to make a stand at the two rivers, the Lukovitz and the Luvkin.

The evacuation of Halicz makes a retreat from the Brzezany-Zloczoff-Brody line by the Austro Germans almost a necessity.

Meanwhile the Russian artillery is hammering the enemy lines south of Brzezany and north of the Pripyat marshes near Dzinsk and Smorgon, the fighting activity has increased.

On the western front along the Chemin Des Dames the French have repulsed more attacks by the troops of the German crown prince. The latest German efforts were not made in as great force as those of last week. The French also threw back a strong attack near Hurtebise in Champagne.

A vigorous artillery duel is in progress between the British and Germans in Flanders. The British artillery fire has been intense along the front held by the Belgian army. In Flanders the British have advanced their lines east of Costeaverne.

The Germans cannot declare their terms of peace and "must fight and conquer," Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the imperial chancellor, is reported to have told members of the Reichstag. Peace without annexation is not looked upon with favor by the German government, the chancellor is reported to have said, adding: "I am sure we can win if we hold out."

The tension of the political situation in Berlin is still intense. The imperial chancellor, one report says, will retain his post, but a German paper says he has promised the resignations of Foreign Minister Zimmerman and Vice-Chancellor Helfferich. Changes in the Prussian cabinet are expected.

The Spirit of '17

Because the loss of the "trigger finger" had prevented his enlistment, Walter Cogswell Forse, age 19, of Binghamton, N. Y., walked all the way from that city to Washington to make personal application to the Major General Commandant of the United States Marine corps. Forse carried a sign on his back which read "From Binghamton, N. Y., to Washington, D. C., to join the United States Marines. It's worth it!"

Upon his arrival here young Forse proved that the loss of the index finger of his right hand was no handicap in the performance of military duty, and special authority was granted for his enlistment. So far as is known, he is the first man, similarly handicapped to pass the military authorities. —Henderson Gleaner.

Sam Phelps' Ford caught fire and was burned up near Madisonville.

Christian county's quota of the volunteers called for by the President to recruit the regular army is 77 and only 20 have responded. Trigg's quota is 29 and 5 have been secured. Hopkins-kins asked for 68, has supplied only 1.

Several schools of sharks, some of them of large size, have been sighted between the Delaware and Hatteras capes, according to word received by the weather bureau from a marine correspondent. The sharks appeared to be traveling northward.

The last step necessary to make the entire national guard available for duty in France was taken Monday by President Wilson with the issuing of a proclamation drafting the state troops into the army of the United States on August 5.

Miss Katherine Abbott Sanborn,
(Kate Sanborn) author, who earned her first money by writing while still wearing short frocks, died Monday at the age of 79. Miss Sanborn was formerly professor of English literature at Smith College and in recent years has lectured on literary topics.

Gov. Cox, of Ohio, is to be married at Dayton next September to Miss Margaret P. Blair, daughter of Thos.
S. Blair, Jr., president of the Blair Engineering Company. Blair and his daughter are in New York to say good-bye to Miss Blair's brother, who joined the navy.

Six men were killed and thirty-one injured in an explosion which wrecked two storehouses at the Mare Island navy yard Monday, according to the commandant's reports to the navy department. Four of the injured were seriously hurt. The ammunition magazines were not set off, although many buildings at the station were damaged.

A billion bushels increase over last year's production in the principal food crops is the response American farmers have made to President Wilson's appeal, saying that upon them "rests the fate of the war and the fate of the nation." A production of 6,093,000, 000 bushels of the principal food crops was forecast by the Department of Agriculture.

Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman, anarchists, convicted in New York of conspiracy to obstruct the operation of the selective draft law, started for prison in the custody of federal marshals a few hours after the verdict had been rendered. Berkman was taken to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., and Miss Goldman to the state prison at Jefferson City, Mo. Each was sentenced by Federal Judge Mayer to the maximum penalty of two years' imprisonment and to pay a fine of $10,000. The prisoners were in a defiant mood during their departure.

President Wilson issued a proclamation
Monday drafting the entire National Guard of the country into the United States army to date from August 5 next, and also calling the regiments out for active service. Fourteen camp sites for the sixteen tactical divisions into which the guard will be organized for war purposes have already been selected, and railway routing for the troops is being prepared. Seven of the sites selected are in the Southeastern Department, five in the Southern and two in the Western. The two others will probably be in the Southeastern Department.

THE CELL'S SECRET

By ANNA L. HEATH.

A small body of German troops under a Captain Henk occupied a little town somewhere in France. The inhabitants had fled with the sole exception of Old Louis, a crippled cobbler, who said he'd not leave his little shop and garden for any number of Germans nor for the Kaiser himself. Henk liked this dandless old Frenchman and often went to his shop to talk.

Henk's men had been rummaging about the town and reported to their captain that one of the cells in the tiny jail was so securely closed that it resisted all their efforts to open it. Henk went down to the jail and ordered his men to force open the door. They did so and found the cell exactly like the others and empty save for a stool and low cot.

That night Henk sat talking in the cobbler's shop and idly asked the reason for the closed cell. Louis was evidently reluctant to explain, but after some urging told this story to the German:

"Years ago, sir, in another war, some of your men and an officer named Holweg took this town. Marie, the best-loved maid among us, was known to possess a military secret of such import that your countrymen thought any means justified that would wring it from her. They confined her in that cell and daily tried to force her to play the traitor. Hunger, thirst, cold, threats, abuse, bribes and blows, all alike failed to open her lips. Pale, silent and proud, our French girl defied her foes. At last it was thought that a threat against her honor might avail. A young German named Berg was chosen to pass the night in Marie's cell. His position was most hateful to him and he hoped from his heart that a threat would suffice.

"At nightfall Berg entered Marie's cell. Morning brought him forth, pale and trembling. Going to report, Berg suddenly laughed wildly, drew his pistol and shot himself dead. For a time his fellows were shocked into silence. Then Franz, a coarse, brutal fellow, stepped forward and boasted that he would learn the maid's secret, nor would he blow out his brains in the telling of it.

"At nightfall Franz entered Marie's cell. Morning brought forth a raving madman, shrieking of unseen horrors and cowering in abject fear. For a time none volunteered to investigate further. Then Lieutenant Boffmann, a student, a cold, exact scientist, declared he would learn Marie's secret and neither die nor go mad in the telling of it.

"At nightfall Boffmann entered Marie's cell. In the morning no one came forth. Holweg and several of his men entered the jail and opened the cell door. Alone, Marie lay on her cot, dead, her hands folded and a smile on her lips. Though quite lifeless her face glowed with a mystic light. The men looked at her in awe. Holweg looked about for some trace of Boffmann. A strange heap on the floor drew his attention. He stooped to examine it. There were bits of cloth, a button, gold braid, human fingers, bones and hair. As the Germans touched them they shivered into formless dust. Cold horror seized the men and they fled from the room. Outside, the officer grew ashamed of his fear and returned to the cell. Marie's body was gone. On the cot lay a paper. Holweg caught it up and read aloud these words to his astonished men: 'Berg knew and Berg is dead. Franz knew and Franz is mad. Boffmann knew and Boffmann is nothing. Take heed lest a worse thing befall you.' As he finished the paper crumbled in his hand and drifted away like smoke. That is all, sir," concluded Louis, "save that Holweg himself made fast the door and until now one has dared to open it."

Henk was silent and thoughtful during the rest of his stay and when he had gone Louis grinned and muttered: "Twas a good story, my captain, a good story; better than the poor truth that in rainy weather that cell roof leaked."

The Wild and Woolly' Forever.
We have a letter from Montana from one of the crooks who helped to rob Jim Moore of his farm in the Flathead country. He admits the charge and wants to know what we are going to do about it. What we are going to do about it is this: R. J. Moore is an honorably discharged Spanish-American war veteran. There is more honor in his little finger than there is in the entire carcass of any human maverick and tin-horn road agent from Missouri to Mariposa, from Ronan to Rotterdam, and we intend to camp on your trail until the wrongs done him are righted. We want the fellow that handed him the knock-out drops—Guemes

Writing Him Up.
"I'll say that you have a host of friends."

"But I don't know that I really have a host of friends."

"I have you two real friends in the world."

"Yes."

"That's a host."

KEPT HER AWAKE

The Terrible Pains in Back and Sides. Cardui Gave Relief.

Marksville, La.—Mrs. Alice Johnson, of this place, writes: "For one year I suffered with an awful misery in my back and sides. My left side was hurting me all the time. The misery was something awful.

I could not do anything, not even sleep at night. It kept me awake most of the night . . . I took different medicines, but nothing did me any good or relieved me until I took Cardui . . .

I was not able to do any of my work for one year and I got worse all the time, was confined to my bed off and on. I got so bad with my back that when I stooped down I was not able to straighten up again . . . I decided I would try Cardui . . .
By time I had taken the entire bottle
I was feeling pretty good and could straighten up and my pains were nearly all gone.

I shall always praise Cardui. I continued taking it until I was strong and well." If you suffer from pains due to female complaints, Cardui may be just what you need. Thousands of women who once suffered in this way now praise
Cardui for their present good health.
Give it a trial.

WHAT REALLY COUNTS.

Nothing that anyone else does really matters; it is what you do that will count.

The Missing Purse.

On board a warship which was in the thick of the battle of Jutland and was well hammered by the enemy, many poor fellows lost the number of their mess and many more were sadly wounded. Among these latter, writhing the chaplain of the grand fleet, was a sailor whose leg was so much shattered and incised by a splinter of shell that there was nothing else to do but to amputate it above the knee. The poor wounded man was practically unconscious from loss of blood, so the surgeons were not able to tell him of their intentions before operating. Some hours later he recovered consciousness and found himself comfortably tucked up with the stump dressed and bandaged. When he learned what had happened he broke into an agonized cry. No, not for the crippling he had undergone; his cry was:

"Where's my leg? For 'evin's sake, find my leg, somebody! It's got all my money in the stocking."

Garden Out of a Swamp.

Hiram Wixon, formerly of Aurelius, the man who added hundreds of thousands of dollars to the wealth of his neighbors, is dead, the Detroit News states. Wixon years ago conceived the idea of doing gardening in Aurelius swamps, which comprise many acres. He was regarded as at least mildly insane when he went into the swamp and cleared a place for a vegetable garden. Farmers and scientists proved conclusively that nothing could be raised successfully because of the water and the nature of the soil, but Wixon kept on despite ridicule. When he raised bumper crop many others followed his example and in time a large part of the swamp was conquered. Wixon worked out a drainage scheme by means of a series of ponds which he stocked with carp. The fish grew to immense size and also added to his income.

His Negligence.

"Grand avenue was jammed with motors and street cars, and there was a fire run just as I tried to cross," explained skimpy little Mr. Meek. "I literally took my life in my hand and—"

"Yes, and probably that was just where you lost the package of bird seed," interrupted his wife. "I cannot trust you to bring anything home."—Kansas City Star.

Not on the Map.

Farmer Brown—Look here, mister, the war map you sold me ain't correct. Shopkeeper—Really! How do you know that?

Farmer Brown—My boy has written home and says he's just going to Reconnoiter. But I'm hanged if I can find the place marked on the map!—London Tit-Bits.

SKETCHING AT THE FRONT

Exploding Shell Spoils Artist's Work, but He Frantically Proceeds With New Subject.

After the battle of Neuve-Chapelle a few correspondents, including Elmer of the Associated Press and myself, were taken by the British to see the ruins of the town which they had just captured. In our party was Matania, an Italian sketch artist, whose work in the London Illustrated weeklies has been considered the best that has appeared during the war. It was a cloudy day, and in the late afternoon a rainbow appeared over the shattered village, framing it like a prosenium arch—a stage setting. Matania, in hot enthusiasm, began to sketch the scene, when a three-inch shell whistled its way to a spot near by and burst. The explosion drenched the party in mud and half covered Matania's drawing.

With an Italian expatriate, the artist tore up the drawing and began violently to sketch the shell-burst as the fresh memory of it appeared in his mind's eye. A second and a third shell fell near the party, and the British officer ordered us to move on to another part of the line, as the German had undoubtedly found our range.

At dinner that night Matania, rumpling his hair with excited hands, suddenly shouted: "Fool that I am! Why didn't I save that mud-covered drawing and have it published to show how near I came to being killed today!"—William G. Shepherd in Everybody's.

Aluminum Can Now Be Soldered.

The great drawback to the use of aluminum for industrial purposes has hitherto been that once broken or cracked it could be mended only by riveting or welding, a costly process, for there has been no way of soldering the metal. At last, however, a solder has been found that seems to remedy this defect. This has been tested by the advisory panel of scientific experts in the British ministry of munitions and reported upon so favorably that the comptroller of munitions has called it to the attention of the Woolwich arsenal and other munition makers in England.

The inventor has not made public the formula, but states that it is merely an alloy of common metals, blended in certain proportions and applied in the ordinary way with a torch. He shows a series of photographs of a large aluminum casting with great piece being broken out of it being patched on, soldered and then filed down smooth.

For welding aluminum a temperature of more than 900 degrees Fahrenheit is necessary; 350 degrees suffice for soldering.

BOOTING CROOKS NEW SPORT

South American City Found Way to Reform Pickpockets But the Innocent Suffered Also.

"Booting the pickpocket" bids fair to become the national pastime unless the police interfere, says a correspondent at Buenos Aires. Pocket picking on street cars has become a great nuisance and a local newspaper offered a novel method of combatting the thieves.

"One of the tricks much practiced," it explained, "is for one person to stoop in the doorway of the car to tie his shoe lace or to pick up some object. Thus he obstructs the movements of the victim whose pockets are emptied by the stooper's associates. Brief and vigorous action is best. Kick the bending person into the car without mercy. He will express surprise, but this is better than being robbed."

The plan was an immediate hit. It proved such good sport that the slightest sign of a genuflection in the doorway of a street car is generally the signal now for the genuflector to land instantly on all fours in the middle of the aisle. No end of fights have resulted and the police are threatening to interfere. Meanwhile the pickpockets are devising other tricks and are receiving few of the kicks.

DOG WITH HYDROPHOBIA

Was Killed on Farm of Lee Witty After Biting Animals.

There is considerable excitement in the county west of the city, caused by the presence of a mad dog. The dog bit a dog belonging to Carter Pindexter, on the farm of Lee Witty. This dog in turn bit a cow on the place. The canine was killed as soon as its condition was noticed.

It was not known that the cow had been bitten until she developed hydrophobia and went rapidly from the first stages into a violent condition. She was shot and the carcass covered with wood and burned.

A close watch is being kept on all stock in the neighborhood for fear that the dog that bit the Pindexter dog has attacked other animals in that section.

TO THE DEMOCRATS OF CHRISTIAN COUNTY

JOHN C. DUFFY.

My interest in the affairs of Christian county, the success of the Democratic ticket, and my desire to return home permanently, have led me to yield to very earnest solicitations of many of my friends to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for County Attorney.

Because of my present duties it will not be possible for me to see very many of the voters in person, but my record in office is well known to the people of the county, and if nominated I will do all in my power for the success of the party in November.

If elected I will devote my best efforts to the duties of the office. The influence and support of the Democratic voters of the county are respectfully solicited in the coming primary election.

JOHN C. DUFFY

Announces For County Attorney, Subject to Action of Democratic Primary.

We are authorized to announce

JOHN C. DUFFY

as a candidate for nomination to the office of County Attorney subject to the action of the Democratic party in the August primary.

TO NOMINATE ATTY. GENERAL.

Louisville, Ky., July 11.—The Democratic State Central and Executive committees in joint session at the Seelbach Monday deferred the selection of a nominee for attorney general until their next meeting, July 18, and referred contests throughout the state to a special committee composed of Joseph E. Robinson and J. E. Hayes, Dawson Springs. This committee will hear the contestants and report their findings for final action to the central body at the next meeting.

9,000 Proposals.

Chicago, July 10.—F. H. R. Green, son of the late Mrs. Hetty Green, of New York, who is here refused to confirm or deny a report that he would be married here tomorrow.

"You can never tell what a day will bring forth, however," he added.

Mr. Green admitted that he had received by mail 9,000 proposals of marriage during the last 15 years.

1—French officer and his dog both wearing gas masks while crossing a dangerous zone near the Chemin-des-Dames. 2—Stretcher bearers taking a patient into Columbia War Hospital, the first one built in the United States. 3—Sidney D. Walden, former president of a big motorcar company, who is giving all his time and knowledge to aid the aircraft production board. 4—Chinese troops likely to be involved in another civil war; they are doing the gooseneck taught them by their German drillmasters before the war.

have issued a call for governmental reform in Prussia. The pan-Germans, save for a few of the most rabid, are becoming smaller day by day.

Serious riots occurred in Amsterdam last week in which armed women raided the market places. These disturbances were due to the exportation of potatoes to England, to which the government is committed under agreements to preserve its trade relations with both Germany and the entente nations.

Preparations for speedy participation in the war occupied Venizelos and his government in Greece last week. The premier has declared that the treaty with Serbia, disregarded by Constantinople, shall be faithfully executed.

Senate Discusses Taxes and Food.

The revised war tax bill was reported to the senate on Tuesday. As it stands, it will raise a revenue of $1,070,000,000—a reduction of $130,000,000 from the house bill. The tax on war profits was increased so as to raise $525,000,000. The discussion of the food control bill continued in the senate, the prohibition forces refusing to accept the plan of eliminating the provision for the commandeering of the existing supply of whisky for the manufacture of ammunition. The Southern senators, characteristically, rushed to the defense of cotton, to prevent its inclusion among the articles to be controlled.

The combat between the council of national defense and certain senators and representatives who have not distinguished themselves by broad-mindedness and patriotism, is deplored by those who desire to see the war needs of the country supplied in the quickest and best way.

Accusations or hints of profiteering against members of the council, unsupported by facts, are footless and gain little sympathy from persons of intelligence. It is a pity that so many of our national representatives are too petty to be able to grasp a great occasion.

China Going Backward?

While most of the civilized world is battling for the security of democracy, the republic of China, which never was a real republic, is about to relapse into its old state of monarchy. Out of the tangle of circumstances in the Orient has come a new revolution which aims to restore the young Manchu emperor, Hanan Tung, to the throne, he abdicated. With the guidance and support of Gen. Chung Hsun, the youth has established himself in the palace at Peking and is in a fair way to gain control of north China. President Li Yunn Hung took refuge in the Japanese embassy and ordered the vice-president to assume the presidency and establish the government temporarily at Nanking. This was done, Baron Feng Kwo Chang being named president. Both sides have assembled large forces, and the latest advice indicates war will break out at any moment.

The general opinion is that Gen. Chang Hsun is endeavoring to set up a dictatorship, using the young emperor as a cat's paw. So far Japan seems inclined not to interfere in this Chinese embroilment.

General Scott, American chief of staff, was fortunate enough to be at the front and to witness the Russian attack from a vantage point.

A by-product of the successful Russian offensive was the granting by Emperor Charles of Austria of amnesty to all civilians convicted of treason and other offenses. This attempt of the emperor to win all parties to the support of the government, it is predicted, will not succeed for the Czechs especially are still obdurate, and the opposition is becoming stronger daily.

Work of German Spies in America.

With the safe arrival in France last week of the last transports of the American expeditionary force, carrying the horses and ammunition, the government let it be known that the previous sections, carrying the troops, were twice attacked by German submarines. The U-boats were driven off before they could do any damage, and at least one of them was sunk by gunfire. The successful combat of these attacks enhances the fear of the navy in transporting the expedition without loss, but the fact that the submarines waylaid the transports far outside the war zone has aroused the authorities at Washington to the truth that German spies in this country must have told Berlin when the expedition was to sail and by what route. Secretary Daniels and Admiral Benson were the only persons, supposedly, who knew the route selected. Admiral Gleaves sailing with sealed orders which he did not open until he was out several days. When the expedition was well on its way a wireless was sent to Admiral Sims, in command in European waters, to pick up the transports at a specified rendezvous outside the war zone. This message was in the navy's most secret and recently revised code.

The decent citizens of East St. Louis have banded together to redeem the place, and already have forced the mayor to dismiss the chief of police, the fire marshal and other officials.

Death took two prominent men last week. Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, the eminent British actor, died in London, and William H. Moody, former attorney general and former associate justice of the Supreme court of the United States, passed away at his home in Massachusetts.

GLASSES VS. WRINKLES

NEWS REVIEW OF THE PAST WEEK

Kerensky Leads Russia's Army in Renewed Offensive on Galician Front.

CHEERING NEWS FOR ALLIES

Work of German Spies in America Resulted in Futility Submarine Attack on Pershing's Transports—Attempt to Restore Manchu Empire in China.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD.

Second in importance only to the arrival of the American army in France, in the eyes of the allies, is the successful resumption of the offensive by the troops of the Russian republic. Led by the lion-hearted Kerensky himself, the Muscovite soldiers on Sunday began a fierce attack on the Austro-German lines in eastern Galicia near Brzezany. In the first two days the Russians drove the enemy out of a triple line of trenches and captured the town of Konjuchy and 18,300 men, this great number of prisoners indicating a breakdown of the morale of the Teutonic troops. The fighting continued all week and the losses on both sides were very heavy. The wonderfully efficient work of the Russian artillery in the preparatory bombardment shows this arm of the service is better equipped than ever before.

Leimberg is the immediate objective of this Russian advance, and at the same time an attack is in progress further north which threatens Kovel.

While vast importance attaches to the result of this battle, it is the renewed willingness and even desire of the Russian troops to fight the Teutons that is most cheering to the allies. The army at least on that front now is well in hand and is better supplied with munitions than at any previous time.

All the regiments that took part in the fighting of Sunday and Monday have been officially designated "18th of June regiments," that being the old style date. Kerensky's presence inspired the men to almost unanimous action, the few laggards being punished by being removed from the ranks and sent home.

General Scott, American chief of staff, was fortunate enough to be at the front and to witness the Russian attack from a vantage point.

A by-product of the successful Russian offensive was the granting by Emperor Charles of Austria of amnesty to all civilians convicted of treason and other offenses. This attempt of the emperor to win all parties to the support of the government, it is predicted, will not succeed for the Czechs especially are still obdurate, and the opposition is becoming stronger daily.

Work of German Spies in America.

With the safe arrival in France last week of the last transports of the American expeditionary force, carrying the horses and ammunition, the government let it be known that the previous sections, carrying the troops, were twice attacked by German submarines.

The U-boats were driven off before they could do any damage, and at least one of them was sunk by gunfire. The successful combat of these attacks enhances the fear of the navy in transporting the expedition without loss, but the fact that the submarines waylaid the transports far outside the war zone has aroused the authorities at Washington to the truth that German spies in this country must have told Berlin when the expedition was to sail and by what route.

Secretary Daniels and Admiral Benson were the only persons, supposedly, who knew the route selected. Admiral Gleaves sailing with sealed orders which he did not open until he was out several days.

When the expedition was well on its way a wireless was sent to Admiral Sims, in command in European waters, to pick up the transports at a specified rendezvous outside the war zone. This message was in the navy's most secret and recently revised code.

Many persons on the Atlantic seaboard knew when the vessels sailed, and that information presumably was sent the Berlin by a German agent by wireless in some roundabout way, but how the route was discovered seems to be a mystery.

President Wilson has given orders that the German spy system be wiped out before any more troops sail, and many a Teuton is likely to be interned for the period of the war. Until now the government has been unexplainable lenient in its treatment of Germans and their sympathizers, in the country generally and in the city of Washington. We are not at war, officially, with Austria-Hungary, Bulgaria and Turkey, and the diplomatic representatives and agents of these countries are still free to serve their ally in any way they can. The German press of America also is still unmolested and continues its sinister campaign against the successful conduct of the war. In view of the confidential information from their Washington correspondents available to the German-American editors, and despite their protestations of loyalty to America, it is not beyond the bounds of reason that some of these editors should be doing spy work for the Kaiser, to whose cause they have shown themselves devoted.

German plotters and their friends also are credited by the government with devising and in part executing a plan to cripple shipping on the Great Lakes by sinking or disabling vessels. The federal officials, aided by those of Canada, are getting after these miscreants.

Having received their munitions, General Pershing's troops were promptly moved forward to their intermediate training camps back of the fighting lines, where they can hear the roar of the great guns. The official review of one battalion was the chief feature of the Fourth of July celebration in Paris, and the people of that city went wild with enthusiasm over the American fighters.

British Again Advance.

Field Marshal Haig again swatted the Germans on Thursday, beginning a resumption of the offensive in Belgium, where there had been comparative quiet for a week. The British made a considerable advance southwest of Hollebeke.

The Germans made a tremendous attack on the French lines east of Cerny Tuesday, but were repulsed by Petain's men with great slaughter. While they were demoralized by this defeat the French made a clever counter-attack, capturing a strong salient.

Another slump in the number of U-boat victims was shown in the weekly report of the British admiralty, and the naval officials of the allies are convinced that the submarine warfare has failed. The Germans are sending their U-boats far afield, one of them having shelled Ponta Delgada, a city in the Azores. An American transport helped drive the submarine away.

On Wednesday a dozen or more German air raiders appeared over Harwich, a seaport in Essex, and dropped many bombs, killing 11 persons. They were driven off with gunfire and aircrafts, and two of them were brought down ablaze.

German Unrest Increases.

On the eve of the meeting of the Reichstag its committees were told by spokesmen for various groups that further proffers of peace such as Germany is willing, even anxious, to grant will be harmful and that all the empire can do is to hold out and meantime "democratize" the country; that it might have peace this summer if it were willing to abandon all annexations and indemnities and to drop the idea of a separate peace with Russia; and that the peace formula of the Russian council of deputies was impossible. The so-called democratizing of the empire, it appears, will take the form of reforming the franchise so far as the Reichstag is concerned, which means mighty little so long as the German senate, composed of appointed members, has full control over the lower house, and there is no cabinet responsible to the parliament.

DIED NEAR CARL.

A. P. Brown, of the Carl neighborhood, died at his home at that place Monday. The funeral services were held Tuesday at the home. The burial was at the Hayes burying ground.

A Soldier's Letter

A remarkable letter was found recently which had been written to a Bavarian at the front three weeks ago.

The letter says in part: "One can well understand that you are sick of this horrible business. I believe that the climax has been reached, for now one hears nothing but complaints. The German Social Democrats have announced that if a single shot is fired in August revolution will follow. The situation is no longer good. They are on the track of the German Kaiser, too, and if it lasts much longer it will be the end of Prussia, for the Prussians and the English are the masters.

These two alone are carrying on the war. The others are merely in their hands."

HOW "PUSSYFOOT" JOHNSON MADE GOOD CITIZENS OF INDIAN CHARGES

Story of a Deed That Will Render Johnson Immortal in the Hearts of the Pueblo Indians—Fights for Boy Deputy Against Forces of Bad Government Which Ultimately Cost Him His Official Position.

ANOTHER OF JOHNSON'S GREAT EXPLOITS

The case of Juan Cruz, which created a sensation in the West and was instrumental in rendering the Indian department asunder, was also the cause of Johnson's resignation. He could not have maintained his position at the cost of letting the boy hang; he preferred to stand by him and unite the powerful influence of New Mexico's politicians against him.

After the incorporation of the territory into Oklahoma Johnson's activities lay largely among the Indians of New Mexico and California. As chief special officer, he had the charge of protecting the Indian reservations against the inroads of the bootleggers and other vicious characters. If Johnson had succeeded in obtaining the unwavering devotion of his white associates, he was still more blindly trusted by his Indians. On every reservation today Johnson is remembered with touching faith and child-like affection. It is no exaggeration to say that he has done more to put the red man on his feet and make him self-respecting than anyone else who has labored for the Indian in the United States since the days of the first missionaries. More than that, Johnson so established the Indian's reputation that his testimony became as valuable before a jury as that of a white man.

One of his most zealous followers was a certain Bill Pablo, a man of unbounded charity and courage, who maintains a dozen Indian orphans on his farm at his own expense and is working with all his might to improve the morals of his people. Yet, when Johnson met him, he was an outlaw, with four murders to his name. He was a terror to the whites. Johnson's interest in the man was aroused by his notorious character.

"One day," said Johnson, "I purposefully met him where we could talk alone, and there we bad it out together."

"Why is it that you are always fighting the whites?" I asked.

"Because they are all liars, thieves, and whisky peddlers," he retorted.

"Aro they all liars, thieves, and whisky peddlers?" I ventured.

"So near, there ain't no difference," said Pablo.

"Am I a liar and thief and whisky peddler?" I questioned.

"I believe you are on the square," he answered, looking me straight in the eye.

"Then you and I are on the same job," I told him. "You come with me and we will make sausage of these white liars and thieves and whisky peddlers. I'll give you two dollars a day and expenses, and give you the time of your life besides."

"Bill jammed his boot-heel into the sand a couple of times, and then grabbed my hand. And that Indian went out after the whisky peddlers with the same zeal that he had displayed in different directions. In the three years that followed he had more to do with the cleaning up of southern California than almost any other man."

"Bill's arrival in any hamlet within a hundred miles of his home was the signal for the whisky peddlers to take to the brush. But taking to the brush did not help them much, for every Indian was Bill's friend, and would put him on the trail."

shot down in cold blood because after being pelted with drink they refused to part with their possessions at the bidding of the liquor peddlers. Cruz proved to be one of Johnson's best deputies, and particularly reliable.

When Johnson undertook his cleaning up campaign he put his first assistant, Harold F. Coggeshell, in charge of the initial work. This was accomplished chiefly through the Indian deputies themselves, who went at it with true Indian ardor, about in the same spirit as that with which they would have gone on a bear hunt. Their chief enemies were the Mexicans, who were invariably opposed to their efforts. But other enemies were harder to overcome.

A company of politicians in Santa Fe had incorporated a liquor selling concern, which traded with the whites, according to law, and with the Indians in defiance of it. It did a business amounting to $30,000 a year, and was a political factor which gave it immunity from prosecution.

The Indians gathered evidence to show that this company was violating the law, and went with it before the grand jury. The grand jury did little or nothing; the temerity of the Indians was a matter for ridicule, not for action.

However, the Indian superintendent was president of this organization, and the storm of protest which arose was so great that Assistant Commissioner Abbott went down from Washington to Santa Fe to investigate matters. The superintendent was forced to resign the presidency, but Mr. Abbott came to the conclusion that Johnson had been overzealous in his work and ordered him to discharge two of his deputies, who had been prime movers in the complaints, one of them being Miss Clara True, a stanch friend of the red man.

At this time Commissioner Valentine, who was at the head of the department to do the work of a deputy at the Mexican village of Chamita, a peculiarly vicious center, filled with dives, and inhabited only by Indians and Mexicans. At one of the numerous "joints" in this settlement it was known that the vilest spirits were supplied to the Indians, in violation of the territorial laws. The "bad man" of Chamita was a desperado known as Garcia, who was such a notorious character that he had been run out of his own village. Cruz determined to arrest Garcia and thereby strike a blow at the traffic. He consulted nobody about his intentions in the matter. Had he been more worldly wise, says Johnson, he would have asked for help, and would certainly have obtained it. Instead of which, he armed himself with a revolver, with whose use he was hardly acquainted, and went alone at night to Chamita when he knew Garcia would be there.

He waited outside the dive until he saw Garcia emerging, and then, approaching him, he wrested the whisky bottles which Garcia was carrying out of his hand, with the object of taking them to headquarters and using them as evidence against him.

Garcia and his companions, three other Indians of the lowest type, at once set upon Cruz and began beating him. His face was cut open with a stone, he was struck and clubbed repeatedly. With the blood streaming down his clothes Juan shouted to the attackers to desist, announcing his intention of shooting unless they did so. Instead of which they flung themselves upon him and bore him to the ground, and drew their knives, intent upon finishing him.

In the darkness Cruz fired into the air, to scare his assailants. How Cruz managed to hit anybody, being wholly unused to firearms, is singular; but the bullet, guided by chance, pierced Garcia through the heart, and he fell dead. His cowardly assistants at once perance union at once flung itself into the battle. They formed a Juan Cruz defense committee, composed of Mrs. H. H. Byrd, Mrs. Katherine B. Patterson, Miss Clara True, Miss Mary T. Bryan, and vowed Cruz should not hang. A public appeal for funds was sent out. The newspapers took up the matter. Mr. J. B. Crist, one of the most brilliant criminal lawyers in New Mexico, was employed to defend the young Indian.

The widespread interest in the defense of Cruz attracted the notice of Commissioner Robert G. Valentine, head of the Indian department, who was, as has been said, a stanch friend of Pussyfoot, and who had been away on sick leave. Valentine had once received a communication from Johnson when the sleuth was in prison upon some trumped-up charge or other, and had wired back:

"As you know, I am with you to the limit, in prison or out."

Mr. Valentine now interested himself in the matter by not only immediately reversing the order of Assistant Commissioner Abbott, but in sending Johnson instructions to do everything in his power to help the boy. Johnson had done that already. He had written to the defense committee to the following effect:

"Referring to our conversation of the other day in the matter of Juan Cruz, I must repeat that, under instructions from Assistant Commissioner Abbott, I cannot take part in his defense. This of course does not bar me from contributing personally to the fund raised for employment of counsel for his defense. I therefore enclose my personal check for $50 toward the fund.

"The thing lies heavily upon my heart. For six months Juan gave splendid aid to my officers in suppressing the liquor traffic among the Pueblos, of whom he is one. And when our appropriation ran low this boy became one of a band of the finest Indians I ever saw to work for the rescue of their fellow-Indians, at their own expense.

"Cruz is one of the finest type of young Indian men I have ever known. Father Camillo Sene, his pastor, speaks in the highest terms of Juan; so do the merchants in the vicinity; so does my good friend Father Hoelteman, who knows every Indian in that valley, and who has lived with them, worked with them, prayed with them and fought with them for a dozen years."

On receipt of Commissioner Valentine's orders abrogating those of Assistant Commissioner Abbott, Johnson hurried to Santa Fe and took up the defense with all his might. Never was a defense more vigorously conducted. In the court room, beside Mr. Crist, for the defense, sat David U. Leaby of Las Cruces, the United States attorney who had been detailed, at Johnson's request, to assist him. Juan's young wife Dolorita, and his baby, Jose, were in a corner of the court room. Adjoining the judge's bench and opposite the jury was a delegation of ladies from Santa Fe, and a score of the most prominent women of northern New Mexico. On the front bench sat the veteran Francisco Naranjo, the president of the federation of 6,000 Pueblo Indians, and a veteran fighter and reformer on behalf of his people.

"We know it will all come right," said the Indian. "I know that Mr. Johnson will bring Juan back to me," said Dolorita, the wife of the accused boy. "It doesn't matter. The whole thing is in God's hands. I am merely doing his work," said Juan himself to a charitable woman, who, when the future looked very dark indeed, went to the cell in which he was confined and began talking to him in an endeavor to prepare him for the Juan free—upon a technicality, true but still free.

In Oklahoma Johnson had downed his enemies. In New Mexico they "got" him. Refused deputies, helpless to prosecute his work further, laid down his office. "I refused to be chloroformed," he wrote, explaining his resignation, "but these men finally got me so bottled up that I could do but little except to mark time and draw my salary. I saw no other way to maintain my self-respect except to resign."

One of Johnson's most sensational exploits was his digging up some old forgotten Indian treaties by virtue of which he drove the liquor traffic off the reservations in Minnesota, a one-man prohibition campaign which attracted wide notice to him. During his five years of service he became a national character. His courage, his initiative, his sense of humor, the strong humanity of the man, combined to make him an original and picturesque figure wherever he goes. This country cannot well spare such men from her public services while the greed for gain inspires the violation of its laws.

Innocent Bystanders.

Innocent bystanders probably work for a living like other honest people, but they spend lots of time hanging around street riots and gun fights. An innocent bystander will very often take two hours off at lunch time hunting up a fight or fire to hang around. Every innocent bystander knows that someday his turn will come, and he is never able to kiss his wife and children good-bye as he marches away. Innocent bystanders are the real heroes of daily life and a day of the year should be set aside for their celebration. Schoolchildren should be made to march through the streets in parade escorting a barge wherein is depicted in tableau an innocent bystander's death by a stray brick. The boys in the fifth reader could do a riot scene with spirit. An innocent bystander not long ago, perhaps though not seriously injured by a misdirected club, howled with bidden curses. Which shows that innocent bystanders are not always so innocent.

Fires That Put Themselves Out.

There are numerous instances record in which a fire has been the means of extinguishing itself. The examples of spontaneous combustion are not infrequent, even apart from those cases in which it occurs through the agency of automatic sprinklers.

A fire in a church in Boston, caused by "spontaneous ignition" in a storage room, melted the lead water pipes of the water issuing from them extinguished the fire.

Not very long ago some waste lay upon the top of a steam pump in Watertown, N. Y., blazed from "spontaneous ignition," and this in turn set fire to the lagging round the steam cylinders and the feed pipe, which melted the soldered attachment of continuous automatic sprinklers. The steam from the feed pipe was discharged through the small tubes leading to the oiler, and extinguished the fire.

Linseed Oil for Dying Trees.

A curious method of reviving and reviving or dying trees was reported recently to the French Academy of Agriculture, after being tested successfully in experimental gardens at Autun, according to the April 1 issue of Mechanics Magazine. The trees were first removed so as to lay bare the larger root branches, in which longitudinal slits were then cut and kept open by wedges. These cuts were well rubbed with linseed oil, and after a while numerous small roots appeared, forming a sort of fur, and the trees so treated rapidly gained new life and vigor. The partment and Johnson's stanch friend, was away on sick leave.

The company was reorganized, and the new president was a man who recently had been convicted of selling whisky to Indians. Naturally the establishment continued to run on the same lines as before. It was in the midst of the continued agitation that what is known as the Tragedy of Chamita occurred.

The zeal of Johnson, aided by the efforts of a white woman, Miss True, who has been mentioned, had brought about a reforming spirit among the Pueblo Indians. So thoroughly was Miss True identified with the Pueblo of Santa Clara that she occupied the position of secretary to the tribal council. But there came about a change in the situation, and on Miss True's return from a visit to California, she found that the politicians were practically in possession of the Indians' lands, and the bootleggers had again overrun the reservations.

However, she succeeded in cleaning up Santa Clara and set to work upon the neighboring villages. The politicians at Santa Fe also got busy. Cruz had been one of the Indians who had identified themselves most prominently in the appeal against the illicit shebeen at Santa Fe. There had also been a good deal of friction between the Indian superintendent and Johnson's deputies. There was some doubt as to the exact status of Juan, and, as a result, Commissioner Abbott sent the following telegram to Johnson:

"Your telegram seventh, Cruz shooting. Since Cruz not authorized government employee your service, take no steps regarding his defense. Consult Crandall and give him all information in your possession."

It is only fair to the commissioner to state that it was not intended to leave Cruz to his fate, but merely to leave his defense in the hands of the Indian superintendent, as he was not a regularly authorized government employee. However, Johnson believed that the boy was being railroaded to the gallows. Inasmuch as the sole witnesses to the killing of Garcia were the three remaining assailants of Cruz, who swore in the preliminary inquiry that the killing was entirely unprovoked and deliberate, the chances were strong that Cruz would exonerate the crime with his life. Commissioner Abbott's telegram effectively muzzled Johnson.

About this time he was called home to his pueblo at San Juan by a message that a son had been born to him and his girl wife Dolorita. Juan refused to supply whisky to his neighbors on the occasion of the christening, an act which, breaking completely with the custom of immemorial ages, brought him into prominent notice among his people. After several months of voluntary service Juan succeeded in cleaning out the bootleggers from his own village, often at the cost of assault, and always under persecution.

Finally he asked and obtained per-

The Saving Habit

No matter who you are, where you are, or how old you are, it is your duty to save money.

Are you rich now? You may become poor if you don't save.

Are you poor? You may become rich if you save money and invest it wisely.

If you already have capital, economy will preserve it for you in times of greater need. If you have none, you can acquire it by the same means.

Your whole mind need not be set continuously and exclusively upon the pursuit of wealth. There are other things in life as desirable as making money.

Nevertheless, it is right for you to be as careful of your expenditures as you can be without being miserly or close.

Youth is emphatically the time to begin to save, but it is never too late to start.

Indeed, the main object of saving in early life is not so much the actual amount saved, but it is the foundation of the habit of economy.

CASTORIA For Infants and Children In Use For Over 30 Years Always bears

"IT'S ALL RIGHT"

Uncle Billy Met Death as He Had Lived, With a Smile.

Sixty-Year-Old "Preserved Boy" Went Through World Scattering Sunshine and Optimism All About Him.

Everyone in the community knew Uncle Billy, whom Rhoda, his seventy-year-old sister, described as a "preserved boy." The little old man's sixty years had subtracted all the hair from his head except a thin reminder of white fuzz on a level with the tops of his ears. The back of Uncle Billy's head looked like a big egg in a nest of wool; his face suggested a full moon on the disk of which two twinkling stars stood guard above a smile.

Uncle Billy was always busy, and usually he was doing something worth while. One of his favorite expressions was, "Doing nothing is the hardest sort of work." Uncle Billy tried to like everyone, but he had little use for one of the neighbors named Bruton, whose wife worked the garden while he spent the day at the village store playing checkers and talking politics.

But Uncle Billy had faith in other people. He often commented upon the fact that the persons we like best are usually those we know best, and one day he said to his sister: "Rhody, that man Bruton is all right; the fault was in my mind. I didn't look at him the right way."

Uncle Billy was always hopeful. If he ever had the "blues" no one knew it except himself. Usually when two persons met, one says "Good morning!" or "How-dy-do?" and the other replies, "Good morning!" or "How-dy-do?" When anyone greeted Uncle Billy—morning, afternoon or night—his response was always: "It's all right." If you suggested that the world is growing worse, the little old man shook his bald head vigorously and replied: "No, no, no, no! And even if it were, it would be our business to leave it better for the next generation."

The fact that Uncle Billy was undersized caused some thoughtless remarks that would have hurt the feelings of another. But they did not hurt Uncle Billy's. He would say, with a laugh: "You can't hurt my feelin's," and go whistling about his business. Even the dogs recognized the little old man as their friend. More than once, when some thoughtless or cruel boy tied a tin can or a package of firecrackers to a dog's tail, the frightened creature ran to Uncle Billy for help and protection.

No one ever heard Uncle Billy recite a creed, and no one ever heard him boast of what he had done, was doing or expected to do; but everyone knew that he was religious and that his life was clean and his heart was pure.

Uncle Billy believed that people are affected by the language they use. One day one of his nephews spoke profanely in his presence. "Oh, my dear boy!" exclaimed the old man. "If you expect some day to get through the pearly gates and shout 'Glory' you'd better begin now to shape your mouth for it."

One blustering March midnight Uncle Billy's sister Rhoda leaned over him, placed her wrinkled hand gently on his brow, kissed his hot cheek and whispered: "Billy, the doctor says you cannot stand this pneumonia."

Out of his eyes there came a twinkle, as of the stars, and, attempting to pat his old, sister's cheek, he panted: "It's all right, Rhoda; it's all right."—Yonith's Companion.

When the Shah Was Snubbed. "Rank and wealth mean nothing to this little black-robed professor," writes Mary R. Parkman, in St. Nicholas, of Madame Curie. "It is said that when she was requested by the president to give a special demonstration of radium and its marvels before the shah of Persia, she amazed his serene highness by showing much more concern for her tiny tube of white powder than for his distinguished favor. When the royal guest, who had never felt any particular need of exercising self-control, saw the uncanny light that was able to pass through plates of iron, he gave a startled exclamation and made a sudden movement that tipped over the scientist's material. Now it was the lady professor's turn to be alarmed. To pacify her, the shah held out a costly ring from his royal finger, but this extraordinary woman with the pale face paid not the slightest attention; she could not be bribed to forget the peril of her precious radium. It is to be doubted if the eastern potentate had ever been treated with such scant ceremony."

Beyond His Means. "How much are your pies, mister?" asked diminutive Tommie, peering wistfully over the top of the counter. "Ten cents apiece, little feller." "Oh, I didn't want a pie; I wanted a whole one, but I only got a dime," and Tommie started to turn sorrowfully away.

His Specialty. "Did I understand you to say that this gentleman is an impresario?" "That's what he calls himself." "Then he must know a great many grand opera stars." "Oh, I dare say he has met a few in his day. He directs a troupe of Produce Infertile Eggs!

Infertile Eggs Keep Best and Market Best in Summer Heat

Fertile Eggs Spoil Quickly in Summer Weather

FERTILE EGGS COST THE FARMER AN ENORMOUS SUM EACH YEAR

Farmers lose millions of dollars annually from bad methods of producing and handling eggs. One-third of this loss is preventable, because it is due to the partial hatching of fertile eggs which have been allowed to become warm enough to begin to incubate.

The rooster makes the egg fertile

The fertile egg makes the blood ring

You can save the money now lost from blood rings by keeping the male bird from your flock after the hatching season is over.

The rooster does not help the hens to lay. He merely fertilizes the germ of the egg. The fertile germ in hot weather quickly becomes a blood ring which spoils the egg for food and market. Summer heat has the same effect on fertile eggs as the hen or incubator.

INFERTILE EGGS WILL NOT BECOME BLOOD RINGS

After the hatching season cook, sell or pen your rooster. Your hens not running with a male bird will produce infertile eggs—quality eggs that keep best and market best.

Rules for Handling Eggs on the Farm—

Heat is the great enemy of eggs, both fertile and infertile. Farmers are urged to follow these simple rules, which cost nothing but time and thought and will add dollars to the poultry yard returns:

1. Keep the nests clean; provide one nest for every four hens.
2. Gather the eggs twice daily.
3. Keep the eggs in a cool, dry room or cellar.
4. Market the eggs at least twice a week.
5. Sell, kill, or confine all male birds as soon as the hatching season is over.

NOTICE Valuable published information on the raising and care of poultry and eggs and individual advice on these subjects may be obtained by writing to the Bureau of Animal Industry.

Rural Carrier Examinations.

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination for the county of Christian, Ky., to be held at Hopkinsville on August 11, 1917. Application blanks may be obtained from the office at Hopkinsville or from the United States Civil Service Commission at Washington, D. C. The vacancy for which this examination is announced is caused by the enlistment of the carrier formerly employed on the route.

Census Inspection.

Princeton, Ky., July 9.—Marion F. Pogue, State Inspector of Schools, who has his headquarters here, has finished his inspection of the school census of all the counties of the State except Owen, Menifee and Woodford for the school year 1915 and 1916, and $19,724.63 will be deducted from the pay rolls of the various counties and cities for redistribution to the schools of the State. As the census was taken this year in but two counties and five cities in which there was no aggregate gain, the saving will be $9,636.19 more, or a total saving for the two inspections of $29,090.82.

Ill-mated Pair.

Cruelty on the part of 70-year-old Noah Jackson, of Bullitt county farmer, resulted in his 17-year-old wife, Stella L. Jackson, being awarded a divorce by Judge Walker. She was restored to her maiden name of Kyle. Jackson draws a small pension from the United States government for participating in the Civil War, and out of this he must pay his former wife $1.50 per week. The couple eloped to Jeffersonville April 7, 1916, and after living together four weeks in Bullitt county the bride was forced to flee to the home of her parents in Louisville for her personal safety, she testified in her deposition.

Hollweg Holds Up.

Unofficial reports say Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, the German Imperial Chancellor, in his forthcoming speech before the Reichstag, will make such declarations as will serve as a basis for peace negotiations. The Chancellor's address was to have been delivered before the end of last week, and its temporary postponement may have been caused by the sudden and unexpected offensive movement by the Russians in Eastern Galicia.

Foster has conferred with several of the men of the city and county and they are very enthusiastic over this program. It is certainly appropriate at this time and by this means every district will have a community gathering on that day. It is believed that it will stimulate interest in educational matters and will also arouse a new feeling of patriotism.

This was a large undertaking, but with the co-operation of the people of the city and county it can easily be carried out. The people are responding cheerfully and Supt. Foster is pleased with the outlook.

If you are willing to contribute your voice or automobile or both to this cause on that day, kindly notify Supt. Foster.

The speakers and others interested will meet with Prof. Foster at the H. B. M. A. to-night at 8 o'clock.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Earthen Cure. Send for circular free.

THE TECKTONIUS

Phone, write or call for particulars and prices

Mr. Farmer:

THE AMERICAN FARMER CAN WIN OR LOSE THIS WAR.

This sounds extravagant, but it is true for this reason:

The present world's supply of food stuffs is so far below normal, that between our own appetites and those of our European Allies, somebody is going hungry next fall; UNLESS this year we produce enormously greater herds of beef cattle and much larger cereal yields.

Whether WE and our Allies have plenty next fall depends upon YOU seeing to it that your herds are at least doubled this season and your production increased.

While planning to add more head to your herd, don't make the mistake of failing to supply storage facilities for its winter feed. Nothing is better for stock in winter than SILAGE.

The TECKTONIUS Silo costs but little when compared with what it will bring our Nation and You from cattle supported by the husks and stalks of this year's corn crop.

The Government is providing that the present prices on stock are protected. It now lies with you to do the rest.

There is no use mincing matters—it's up to YOU to strain every effort in furnishing the Nation more meat and grain than ever before.

We're in the war now to finish. "An army crawls upon its belly" and it's up to YOU to see that this belly is kept full.

Buy a TECKTONIUS Silo today and help win the war.
